DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-27, drawn to a method for detecting a nucleic acid target, classified in class 435, subclass 6.
 - II. Claims 28-31, drawn to a complex comprising a nucleic acid comprising a binding ligand, a receptor, and an amplification reagent, classified in class 435, subclass 6.
 - III. Claims 32-35, drawn to a substrate comprising a surface having a nucleic acid probe hybridized thereon, hybridized to a target nucleic acid sequence, wherein the target comprises a binding ligand, which is complexed with a receptor, wherein the receptor is complexed to an amplification reagent, classified in class 435, subclass 6.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

2. Inventions I and II, III are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product is found in groups II and III. The product may be used in materially different processes. The method claims are drawn to a method for detecting a nucleic acid target. However, the product may be used for materially different purposes. For instance, the product may be used in a reaction to determine the efficacy of a certain antibody, or the efficacy of a probe for use in hybridizing the target nucleic acid sequence.

3. Inventions II and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the subcombination involves a surface having immobilized on a nucleic acid probe. This is not the case of the combination, in which no substrate is needed, and the probe may be floating free in solution. The subcombination has separate utility such as in an assay in a tube, where the probe is not attached. In the combination, where the probe is immobilized, this must take place on a solid surface where the probe must be attached, such as an array. However, no such requirement is given for the subcombination and therefore it has a separate utility in the art.

4. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Groups II and III, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

5. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Art Unit: 1655

6. Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
